

pected. Neither the suffragists nor the prohibitionists, however, seem to be prepared to go forth to battle again as resolutely as ever. To them defeat is merely a prelude to harder fighting.

Democratic leaders are making an effort today to put the best front on the results. But they cannot conceal their disappointment in some respects. One effect of the elections will be to accentuate the feeling of some Democratic politicians that the men who are handling politics close to the White House are overconfident and thus are inviting disaster.

Daniels On Results.

"Some things about the elections I like and some I don't like," said Secretary of the Navy, Daniels today, when asked to comment on the results. "We seem to have won a governor in Maryland and lost one in Massachusetts. Results elsewhere were local and crisscrossed with various local issues."

"I expected McCall to win in Massachusetts by a large majority. If he has been elected by only a small margin, as seems to be the case, I think Walsh did very well. It seems to me to forecast Democratic success in Massachusetts in the Presidential election certainly."

Secretary Lansing said he would make no comment except that he was surprised at the size of the majorities in some cases.

"I was surprised," he said, "at the size of the majority against the constitution in New York. I am not surprised at the Congressional results. I believe the Republicans lost one on joint ballot, making little change in the legislature."

Reminded that the suffragists needed his vote in New York, the Secretary said:

"It wouldn't have changed the result."

Secretary Garrison had no comment to make.

G. O. P. Misses Landslide, But Gains in Majority Of the States Voting

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Republican gains in the majority of states voted yesterday were confirmed in practically complete returns today.

There was no landslide. But excepting New York city, every large voting area revealed an unmistakable trend toward the Republican party, and the return of former Progressive members to the fold. The third party almost disappeared in the Eastern States.

Republican National Chairman Charles D. Hill today declared the overthrow of a Democratic governor in Massachusetts and Republican victories elsewhere showed a lack of confidence in President Wilson, and indicated a Republican victory in 1916.

"The Bay State campaign was one of national interest from the first," declared Hill. "Both parties made it plain that a vote for McCall would be a sign of disapproval of the Wilson Administration. McCall won, and the result must offer a gloomy forecast to the Democrats for 1916."

McCombs Discusses Result.

Democratic National Chairman William F. McCombs said the defeat of Governor Walsh in Massachusetts could not be considered criticism of the Wilson Administration.

"I was not greatly surprised at the news," said McCombs. "The Democrats have been fighting against themselves in Massachusetts, while the Republicans and Progressives united behind Mr. McCall."

The changing of only a few thousand votes in Massachusetts gave the Republicans their first Bay State governor in six years. Governor Walsh, who won from McCall by 11,115 last year, was defeated by a plurality estimated at from 3,000 to 6,000. The Republicans also made gains in the legislature.

The Republicans gained one congressman in the elections to fill Congressional vacancies.

In Maryland, Emerson C. Harrington, Dem., was elected governor, but the normal Democratic plurality was cut to about 16,000. Incomplete returns indicate, however, that the Republican Stanley, Dem., was elected governor of Kentucky in a close race with Edwin P. Morrow, Rep., the Progressive candidate proving a negligible factor.

Tammany Makes Sweep.

The Republicans made gains in the State legislature in New Jersey, and will have an overwhelming majority on joint ballot. Insuring the defeat of State Treasurer Groszup, Democrat.

In Philadelphia, the reform candidate for mayor, backed by Mayor Blankenhorn, was badly defeated by the candidate of the Republican organization, Thomas B. Smith.

Up-State New York showed slight Republican gains. But in New York city Tammany made a clean sweep of county and city tickets, electing Judge Swann, a candidate for district attorney, by 34,000. Enough Tammany assemblies were elected in New York to give the Democrats a gain of two votes in the State Assembly, the Republicans losing one and the Progressives one.

Effect of Elections on Presidential Boom Is Engaging Attention

The effect of the election results on different Republican Presidential candidates is one of the topics which commands most attention here, now that the general trend of the ballots is known.

Backers of Senator Theodore E. Burton were promptly in the field with declarations that his candidacy would benefit greatly by the outcome. They said the Republican gains in Ohio, coming right after the fact that Burton had been assured a clear field in the State by the announcement that Governor Willis would not run, added materially to the prestige of the Burton candidacy.

It is certain that the Burton lieutenant and Burton himself are planning a campaign of much activity and energy.

MARYLAND RESULT STILL IN BALANCE

on the heels of the late elections. Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, who is an active candidate for the Republican nomination, is known to be much encouraged by the Massachusetts result. Had Walsh, the Democratic governor, been re-elected, Senator Weeks' Presidential boom would have been badly damaged. As it is, he and his friends are going ahead with renewed vigor.

The interpretation which is being widely placed on the defeat of the New York constitution is that it means that Elihu Root cannot be nominated to head the Republican ticket.

A broader phase of the Republican Presidential situation relates to the bearing of the election results on the general question of whether the Republican trend is toward conservatism or otherwise, and whether the results will tend to enhance the demand for a Progressive Republican nominee.

Progressive Republicans insist that the effect of the defeat of suffrage in the State of New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts is going to affect adversely the interests of the conservatives. In other words, they insist that progressive-minded voters where will insist all the more on the nomination of candidates of a progressive type. This view is held by those who hold that the election results will add to the demand for the nomination of some of the Progressive Republican aspirants.
